

Process Improvement

Do your standard operating procedures make sense? How much waste is going on inside your organization? Do you have a lot of different people, with different titles doing the same thing? Talk to one of our Six Sigma Master Black Belts. With all of the commitments required in today's security and law enforcement environment, money is tight. A bloated organization rife with redundancies is set up for failure. We will keep you lean and agile.

What is Six Sigma?

It is a rigorous and disciplined methodology that utilizes data and statistical analysis to measure and improve a company's operational performance, practices and systems. Six Sigma identifies and prevents defects in service-related processes.

Why Six Sigma in Law Enforcement?

It is a proven business practice that can be used to streamline administrative duties that overwhelm police departments. It also helps to allocate your resources where they are needed when they are needed.

How does it apply to LE?

The pressure is on more than ever with the ever-increasing threat in global terrorism; violent crimes are on the rise and you have limited resources. The communities in which you serve are demanding more specialized services to meet the latest threats, but they are unwilling to pay more taxes or fund additional programs. How do you meet this demand? This is where VTS can help. We will partner with you to assess your current departments' readiness against these threats and create a solution that will enable you to leverage your current resources and allocate them where they are needed most. This will allow you to meet current demands as well as flex to meet new challenges without raising your costs or running your department into the ground.

We can also help you streamline your administrative functions in an effort to reduce your operating costs as well as reduce the amount of time your officers spend conducting administrative tasks. Ultimately you want your officers spending less time doing administrative tasks and more time on the streets doing their assigned jobs.

No matter what your challenges are, we can help. Contact us at <http://www.tacticalvictory.com> to discuss your options.
